Notice to Correspondents.

No letter can be published in these columns which is not authenticated by the name of its author. This we require, not for publication, but as a guarantee of the good faith of correspondents. Persons who communicate this rule will have their communications consigned to the waste-basket.

THE WEEKLY NEWS is the cheapest paper published in North Carolina. It is only one dollar per year, postage paid, contains 32 columns of plain printed news from every section of the country, and important advertisements. Always Cash.

SENATOR DOSEY, of Arkansas, says his is the best governed State in the South. This is under a constitution which Grant wished to upset for the benefit of his Republican friends.

Attorney General Pierpont says he has not had a single complaint of violence in the South since he has been in office, while his predecessor Williams used to get them every day. Either Pierpont is a very careless man, or—but it is no use to go farther. The outrage business has become a glaring humbug, and the administration must find some other string to play on.

THE NEW YORK SUN intimates a fault in the Capital of North Carolina for its want of sufficient telegraph facilities. The responsibility is with the Western Union, a monopoly, against which, in the deficiency of Southern capital there can be no opposition. The deficiency is on the line West, which after being used for twelve years has been suffered to get so out of repair as to be useless, and the Western Union is too thick skinned to be moved by any reprobation or any consideration of public convenience. Nothing less than 20 per cent. dividends will animate them.

And perhaps too, the North Carolina Railroad comes in for a share of blame. Between them, the public suffer.

As a remedy for the supposed evils of calling the opponents of the administration Democrats, prominent Virginians are advocating the call of a convention of the old Whig element at Fairfax next month.

So says the Washington correspondent of the New York Herald and the project strikes us as the dotiest of Bourbonism. Why introduce an unpardonably unnecessary source of dissension into a contest which calls into action every element of unanimity and concession? Why bring words into play to undo the work of principles?

To the older generation, the words whig and democrat had talismanic charms. They were associated with principles that had a living significance, and they were endeared by names which had made them glorious.

To the present generation, constituting three-fifths of the voters, these words conjure up no memories of reverence or of hostility. They are mere empty sounds to them. If public consent settles upon the word Democrat, why, let it be adopted. It may assume a new claim to honor, and be another synonym for victory. As an old whig, we have no objection to its use.

From a Mississippi paper, we take the following. Every man of them who makes the utterance has risen to power through the use of the negro—among them the same Gov. Ames, who advised the hostile demonstration of the ejected colored Sheriff Crosby in Vicksburg, that twenty-five or thirty negroes might be killed, that good to the Republican party might come out of it. Their hostility to the negro does not come out of any conviction of the negro's unfitness for his position, but because he has become a troublesome competitor for office in States where the negro preponderates.

DOWN WITH THE NEGRO.

"Down with the negro" is the cry of Gov. Ames. "Down with the negro," cries Postmaster Pearce, who threatens to run on the white color line. "Down with the negro," exclaims Jackscrew McKee, who stands in mortal fear of Bill Hill, our mulatto Secretary of State. "Down with the negro," batters that hollow old idiot, George F. Brown, and "down with the negro," yells every little hound of the Radical party.

The truth is, the white scoundrels of the Radical party in Mississippi have determined to unload. They are most anxious to be rid of the negro, and they are prepared to throw Sambo overboard without the slightest compunction.

THE THIRD TERM.

The Richmond Whig vaunts its sagacity for maintaining its opinions of Grant's determination to run for the third term. And most likely the Whig is right in predicting the clearness of its foresight, for everything seems to point to the fact that the President is assured of the certainty of his nomination, whether through his own active exertions or the loyal fidelity of his friends.

These last have bound to him by cords that cannot be broken, and they will work for him, possibly from gratitude, certainly for the preservation of their present fortunes; and this interest it must be confessed is strong, and will go a great way to secure the nomination in the convention. For the convention will be a packed body, and its action will be predetermined.

RALEIGH, N. C., Aug. 18th 1875.
To the Editor of the Daily News:

Str.—I do not know that you will willingly give me any words of mine, but your comments, on some expression emanating from myself, will have a tendency to mislead the public.

When I said that the negro was not secured in his rights, I did not intend to convey the impression that he did not have all the rights that pertained to American citizenship, but I did mean that he was not secured in his rights, nor was he not secured to the people.

The relations that have heretofore existed between the white and colored people of this State have been of the most desirable character, but in the last campaign a bitterness of feeling was exhibited which I do not think it can be denied that one of the chief objects aimed at in the change of the Constitution, was an abridgement of the rights of the negro.

For this reason I say that the colored man is not yet secured in his rights.

The negro does not ask for, does not care for, social equality. He knows that such a thing cannot be the creation of legislative enactment.

He only asks to be secured in those rights that are a part of his citizenship, and without which his citizenship would be a mere name.

John Page is no representative of the intelligent colored people of this State, and his language is not to say foolish speech, has been repudiated by the great mass of my race.

No one regards more than I the existence of a "color line," and I hope the day is not distant when a man's party will not be known by the color of his skin—when the negro, secured in the rights he now possesses, will be found in both great political parties, but that day cannot come while able men in the Democratic rank advocate a course of conduct of the negro that now separate the two races.

I shall hail with delight the dawn of that day which shall usher in a feeling of unity between all the sections and all the races of the great country; when there will be no North, no South, no East, no West, but the inhabitants of all shall join hands and hearts in the great work of building up the country.

If you will give space in your column to this correction you will greatly oblige.

Yours very respectfully,
CHAS. N. OTEY.

We take issue with the apprehension expressed by the writer, that the rights already possessed by the negro are not fully secured to him.

The New York Times has an enthusiastic article on the subject of the National Republican, upon a letter from whom we yesterday made some comments. We do so for more reasons than one. We would note out exact justice to all, and we would render the tribute that is due to a sensible and moderate statement of opinions from one who stands in the position of a misrepresenting party.

A Story of Queen Victoria.

Some of the Queen's subjects rebel against her as a sentimenter, her absolute rule, and the idea of her being a stately, glorious royal, but we hear from one who has the best opportunity of knowing the facts that this is the only course of life by which her Majesty can preserve her health and strength, so as fully to discharge her purely official duties. These she has never neglected, not even in times of profound sorrow.

Doublets, hose, simple natural Hights, and a broad belt self-embroidered by a loyal but self-respecting people, is more to her taste than ever was the life of courts and the servile adulation of palace flunkies. She is a woman of shrewd sense and simple tastes, loving independence and sincerity—above all, loving love. I have lately heard, as coming from one of her former ladies in waiting, a touching little story, which illustrates the true domestic character of the woman. When Prince Albert died, soon after her mother, in the first hour of her bereavement, and out of the depths of her desolate widowhood and queenhood, she cried: "There is no one left to call me Victoria."—N. Y.

Times.

Our correspondent disavows these sentiments of John Page and this disavowal does him honor. But as the white republican leaders in the campaign were at no trouble to correct the evil, as they seemed to accept these sentiments as a promulgation of ideas, so will the Democratic party hold them to it, and while anxious to maintain the most friendly relations with the colored people, plants itself henceforward on its own color line, with nothing more to ask and nothing more to concede:

The London press on the Turkish War—Destructive fires in Russia—Prince Milan to be married.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The Times commenting on the Turkish situation says that it is difficult to think the success of the rebellion would be a calamity at present because it might precipitate a desecration of the Ottoman Empire and plunge Europe into a mighty war, we cannot blame the people for seeking to throw off an intolerable yoke.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The towns of Cluchoo Kishar and Zarizin in Russia have been nearly totally burned. Numerous other destructive fires reported in Lithuania and elsewhere in Russia.

A Vienna special to the Standard says letters from Bolgrad express the fear that Prince Milan will shortly be expelled from Serbia.

New System of Trade Proposed.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 19.—J. H. Ruthford and T. D. Worrell English representatives of the Mississippi Valley Trading Co., on change today made brief speeches defining the objects of their company urging the co-operation of the business men of St. Louis in their enterprise. They express the belief in the success of the jetty system now being applied in the mouth of the Mississippi river which would enable them to bring ships to New Orleans and meet the trade of this section of the country.

MIDNIGHT DISPATCHES.

President Davis and the Indiana Agricultural Association, His Letter of Declination.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 19.—Henry P. Kirball, Secretary of the Wayne County Agricultural Society, Rockford, Ill.

DEAR SIR.—I yesterday sent to you a telegram announcing my revocation of my conditional acceptance of the invitation to address your association at their annual meeting in September next. The long period which has elapsed since the receipt of your first letter and the considerate courtesy which has marked your correspondence make it my duty to the board and to myself that sufficient explanation should be given of this change of purpose. Three objects mainly induced me to accept the invitation, first the hope that personal intercourse might remove some of the prejudices which had been generated by partisan factions and nurtured by individual and sectional hate. Anxious as in former years to promote interests of our great valley of the Mississippi, and believing by mutual confidence and contiguity much could be done for their advantage, I only delayed my acceptance of your invitation until it became reasonably probable that it could be met. The productive capacity of the northwest needs for its development cheaper and safer transports to markets of the southwest and also to those foreign countries in England especially. Earnest attention has been directed for several years past to more direct and economical trade with Mississippi and the northwest. There was desire to confer with patrons of manufacture in your rich and prosperous section to discuss with them questions involved in securing better means of transporting your produce to most favorable markets and providing agencies which should insure larger returns to freemen and by such conference, to learn the views of one member of a family of the Mississippi Valley, a family the chief members of which are engaged in which is agriculture, but cultivators of such various crops as to make trade among themselves extensive and lucrative; while it stands upon each and all the same interests and the same policy as to their foreign trade. To render such conference effectual there must needs be a disposition to attend to subjects under consideration, surely not a purpose to smother it by the interpretation of matters having no direct relation to it.

Second, the offer was made to recognize the courtesy of your board, and I was encouraged to believe that your reception of me would be beneficial rather than injurious to your Association. This was the more susceptible because several other agricultural societies of Illinois had in like manner invited me to address their annual meetings. Yesterday I received a printed paper, giving a protest of a number of your foreign country men against the action of your board in their invitation to me to make the annual address at the county meeting. Thereupon I sent you a telegram withdrawing my acceptance of invitation, under the conviction that it would not be agreeable to participate in the meeting and I hope that neither your association nor the directors will be induced by the delay in pronouncing an oration or by the correspondence which ensued to do so.

The object was to gratify a wish long entertained to see in its cultivated dress the country known to me as a trackless wilderness, but that being merely a personal gratification, it may be indulged at my convenience or postponed indefinitely. I can well believe that the cause which has induced my purpose was as unfeeling as by you, as by me and you may be assured that I feel no dissatisfaction toward the directors or yourself and have suffered no personal embarrassment from the event, as the invitation was unexpected and only acceptable as an expression of the general good will, so my only regret is the loss of opportunity to promote the public interest which the welfare of your community is destined. As far as I can give hope that either the directors or yourself many suffer injury if no assurance and thanking you for the kindness and consideration you have manifested I am respectfully yours, Jefferson Davis.
